

Do you remember the Drive-in?

[dropcap style="font-size: 60px; color: #8F9F59;"] T
[/dropcap]his week's image for Mum's Drawer isn't from Mum's Drawer at all, but we couldn't resist sharing it with you.

The photo was taken in the 1960s and is from the collection of Ivan Berndt who used to work at the Warrnambool Drive-In and who still works as a projectionist for Warrnambool's Capitol Cinema.

Do you remember nights at the Drive-in?

A product of the vehicle boom in the 1950s, drive-ins were once the ultimate in cool, what with their kiosks, speakers that hung from the rear window and the freedom of watching a film in the cosy capsule of a car (although, of course, not everyone went to the drive-in to watch the movie...)

Drive-ins survived the arrival of television, but succumbed to the rise of the VCR in the 1980s: people could watch movies of their choice in their own homes.

The Warrnambool Drive-In was on the corner of Rooneys Rd and Raglan Parade, where an (empty) hardware business now stands.

What else have we pulled from Mum's drawer?

To Hoover or not to Hoover?

A well-travelled junket

Bowlin, bowlin', bowlin'...

Lunch order, 1975?

signed, Fletcher Jones

What is a tray cloth?