A musical career with strings attached

South-west musician Philip Trigg has been performing classical and contemporary music his whole life, but is happy to remain very much in the background…